LAW SCHOOL SHOWCASE

Indiana University

The IU School of Law-Indianapolis is truly Indiana's Capital Law School. Located in the heart of Indiana's capital and largest city, with strong ties to the state's business, government and legal communities, IU Law-Indianapolis offers an outstanding legal education. Students participate in internships with twenty state agencies, as well as federal, state and local courts. The school offers international programs in France, China and Argentina, and sponsors a program in International Human Rights Law that has placed more than 50 student interns with human rights organizations in 36 countries since 1997. Visit the school's website at www.indylaw.indiana.edu.

"I have options--why should I pick The University of Toledo College of Law? What's so different about your school?"

Our student body and placement are truly national--our school is not limited by the local community. Further, compared to large state schools, our environment feels like a private, liberal-arts College--personal interaction between faculty and students is the norm. Finally, our reasonable costs and generous full-tuition scholarship program allow our students to be the lawyers they always wanted to be, not the kind they need to be to pay off huge educational loans.

DEDMAN School of Law SMU

For many years, the Dedman School of Law at SMU has trained leaders around the globe. Last year, the Dedman family committed $20 million to name the School, which highlighted a $53 million campaign. Robert Dedman, Sr. ('53) declared: "Nearly all of the major business centers of America have one of the top 10 law schools in the country.... So we need to really work as hard as we can to get SMU, not into the top 25-- but into the top 10."

Robert Dedman, Jr. ('84) remarked, "It is important that SMU continue the tradition of producing some of the most effective business leaders and top quality lawyers in Dallas, the nation and the world."

Countless judges, CEOs, government leaders, and partners have graduated from the School. With four buildings surrounding a tree-lined quad, this vibrant, diverse community of scholars is just five miles from downtown Dallas. Our blend of outstanding classroom teaching and skills training, overseen by an internationally recognized faculty, has resulted in 95%+ placement rates within nine months after graduation.

Visit the campus, or visit the website at www.law.smu.edu, and see why our applications are up 47% this year, with 10 applicants for every spot.
